

It's World Animal Day!

Scientists at land-grant universities are working together to make discoveries and develop tools and practices that support farm animal health and welfare.

Other projects are helping create a more harmonious relationship between agriculture, communities and wildlife.

